CREEPY CRAWLERS

Pretending to eat some Madagascar hissing cockroaches, entomologist Tony Gustin presents Tony's Creepy Crawly Zoo Show on Tuesday for children at The Lindenhurst Early Childhood Center. Tucson, Ariz.-based Gustin talked about the characteristics of various arthropods collected from around the world and allowed the children to see and handle them.

Jessica Hook, 9, of Lindenhurst inspects a giant African millipede Tuesday, part of Tony Gustin's Creepy Crawly Zoo show.
